An Additional Statement from the management at the Residence Inn by Marriott – Chantilly Dulles South

Marriott made the decision to "Go Green" more than 20 years ago. They have been actively involved in energy conservation, as well as water and waste reduction. Over a decade ago, Marriott launched ECHO- Environmentally Conscious Hotel Operations, to focus on water and energy conservation, clean air, waste management, wildlife preservation and clean up campaigns. In the last decade, its hotels worldwide have replaced 450,000 light bulbs with fluorescent lighting, introduced linen reuse programs, and installed 400,000 low-flow showerheads and toilets. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has recognized Marriott as a Partner of the Year since 2004, and recently awarded the company with its 2008 Sustained Excellence award. Marriott has placed the ENERGY STAR label on more than 250 of its hotels, of which the Residence Inn in Chantilly is proud to be one of.

The Residence Inn by Marriott-Chantilly Dulles South started its green efforts before its doors were ever open for business. The hotel was built with compact fluorescent bulbs in all of its indoor fixtures, high SEER rated HVAC systems throughout, and programmable thermostats controlling the air handling in all common areas, meeting room, administrative offices, kitchen, fitness room and hotel laundry room.

The staff at the hotel has been recycling cardboard & ink toners since opening, but have expanded their efforts to include plastic bottles, white paper, mixed paper, packing materials, fluorescent bulbs, ballasts & batteries. The hotel provides guests with plastic utensils, plates & bowls on request, but encourage the use of silverware and ceramic plates & bowls to reduce the impact on the environment.

The hotel is paying closer attention to its supplies and suppliers. Each year, Marriott International and its owners spend about $10 billion buying products and services for its 3,000 hotels around the world. Recognizing this purchasing power, we've teamed up with 40 of our vendors to find more environmentally friendly solutions at no additional cost.
